Youth Group
Growing in Faith, Hope and Love

Wow! What a great week we had at Gulf Coast Bible Camp two weeks ago! God was present in every camper and counselor there. We had five baptisms including our own Lauren Tucker and another from our group that went, Samantha Uteg. Praise God for that!

Our theme this year at camp was "The Way". Each day we learned how we can follow, trust, share, and know the Way, which is Jesus. I pray that as we come back to "the real world" we will continue to follow Christ and God's perfect way for us as Christians.

As Christians, it is easy to follow God when we are at events like camp and in the presence of other Christians. The real challenge is when we go back into the world and are surrounded by all the worries and cares of this world. We must be like Peter when he was walking on the water and stay focused on Jesus and ignore all the turmoil around us. As long as we focus on God and His plan, we will remain strong.

My prayer this week is when we get discouraged, we will refocus on Christ! I hope you all have a great week and always remember you are loved!

Eric

READING THE BIBLE IN A YEAR:
The Genesis Book - Psalms Concerning Man

The first book of Psalms is mostly written by David. Psalms 1, 2, 10 and 33 are anonymous but are usually attributed to David. However, as previously mentioned Acts 4:25 attributes Psalms 2 to David. There is some evidence that Psalms 10 could have been split off from Psalms 9 (a psalm of David). Also, the Septuagint attributes Psalms 33 to David. This leaves only the introductory Psalms 1 without solid confirmation or dedication. Therefore, most scholars believe that this is probably an exclusive, but not exhaustive, collection of Davidic psalms. Ezra may have compiled these psalms with the intended purpose of keeping this first book entirely comprised of Davidic psalms. We can trust his scholarship and the work of the Holy Spirit (II Peter 1:20-21).

Psalms: Book One relates to the book of Genesis. The general theme is about man and His relationship to God (Psalms 1, related to Genesis 1-2), then follows with man's fall and rebellion (Psalms 2-15, related to Genesis 3-11), and ends with hope of redemption through Christ (Psalms 16-41, related to Genesis 12-50). These 41 psalms focus on God's ability to deliver those who fear Him as the Creator. They reflect much of David's life and his understanding of the glory of God. This book uses the divine name Yahweh (273), more than Elohim (15).

Every kind of emotion is revealed in these Psalms. As we read these psalms we witness David pouring out his heart to God, begging God for protection, and asking Him for help against his enemies. They have a personal appeal to the reader and help us to put ourselves in his shoes. No doubt God allows these psalms to be preserved in our Bible to help us feel a one-on-one interaction with God.

Psalms 1 sets the scene for the rest of the book. The man blessed by God is the one who is obedient to His word, while the sinner rejects it and receives His judgment. From the perfection of those who are blessed by God we are led to the Salvation of the Lord. Along the way we see the consequences of sin and the need for redemption. We see the depravity of man despite the great love of God toward the sinner. This causes David to ask, "What is man" that God should pay any attention to him (Psalms 8)? In Psalms 9 he speaks of the Lord as the God who has the power to deliver from the enemy. In Psalms 10 David knows that God hears and answers prayer which is a sign of His deliverance.

Toward the middle of the book, we can see David speaking to God as the Great Shepherd who watches faithfully over His flock (Psalms 23). David praises God as the King of Glory (Psalms 24). Psalms 36 reveals that God hates sin but loves those who trust in Him. However, the closing thought of the section is almost identical in thought to the first psalm as it speaks of the blessed person (Psalms 41). The doxology reads, "Blessed be the LORD God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting." Don't miss the double "Amen" at the end! Have as great week!
